William Nash Court

William Nash Court was built in 1985 and consists of 37 flats with communal facilities in a three storey single building off Brantwood Way. There is a lift to all floors and visitors parking is to the south of the development.

Facilities

Facilities include a resident manager and emergency alarm system. Also a laundry and guest facilities. There are regular bus services and the bus stop is nearby with local shops less than half a mile away.

Location

William Nash Court is close to local shops which include a supermarket, florist, hairdressers, posts office, newsagent and butcher. It is also within walking distance of The Brook at the entrance to St Pauls Cray Park.

Orpington was already a large village at the time of Domesday and belonged to the Archbishop of Canterbury with two churches and two mills. It was then known as Orpinton and remained a village through the next centuries and expanded considerably in the 19th century with the coming of the railways.

The town has a church with vestiges of pre-conquest times and the Priory Museum houses items of local interest. The M25 passes to the east so communications with London and the southeast are very good.

Further afield

St Pauls Cray is about a mile north of Orpington and about three miles from Swanley. The M25 at Junction 3 is about four miles and fast trains to London (Victoria) take just under half an hour.
